Summary: Israeli jets and artillery launched strikes on multiple Hezbollah targets in southern Lebanon overnight, following escalating tensions after a significant attack on Hezbollah communication devices. The Israeli military reported targeting locations such as Chihine, Tayibe, Blida, Meiss El Jabal, Aitaroun, and a weapons storage facility in Khiam. While some Israeli civilians were reportedly injured by anti-tank missiles fired from Lebanon, official confirmation was absent. This occurred amidst ongoing border exchanges with Hezbollah, which had launched approximately 20 projectiles into Israel, mostly intercepted without injuries. The situation has intensified since an attack attributed to Israel's Mossad allegedly killed dozens and injured thousands of Hezbollah operatives. In light of the shifting dynamics, Israeli Defence Minister Yoav Gallant indicated a strategic pivot towards the northern border, reinforcing military presence with elite units from the 98th Division. Since the Hamas attack on October 7, there has been continuous, albeit restrained, retaliatory fire between the two sides, causing evacuations on both borders. Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu has committed to ensuring the safe return of evacuated Israeli citizens to their homes amidst growing public pressure.
